Or, ride into the past on the Butterfield Stage, the narrow-gauge railroad or the Calico Mine Ride. A real favorite is the Timber Mountain Log Ride. Ghost Town is full of authentic Old West stores, saloons and even an old-time jail.

Our own fun-fighters and Calico CanCan dancers perform daily.

For thrills, nothing compares with a ride on the double-loop Corkscrew, the Loop Trainer Flying Machine or the Sky Tower parachute drop.

The area comes alive with the sounds, colors and excitement of the 20's.

Entertainment is wild in the Good Time Theatre, the Cloud Nine Ballroom or the Starlight Pavilion.

Knott's BERRY FARM ...135 FUNTASTICS

A taste of history.

Knott's is fun, thrills, excitement—and history. It's the bustling rowdiness of an Old West Ghost Town.

It's the innocent joy and simple beauty of Early California, captured in Fiesta Village.

It's also the boisterous, fun-loving vitality of The Roaring 20's.

And it's the spirit of a brand new nation, reflected by our Independence Hall replica.

In the midst of all that Knott's is today, stands all that Knott's was in the beginning. The original Berry Stand.

You can still sip a refreshing boysenberry drink at this quaint relic, and get a sense of Knott's own colorful history.

When that time-worn wood was fresh and sappy in the 1920's, Walter and Cordelia Knott farmed the land and sold their crops of berries.

In the 30's, Cordelia ran a tiny chicken dinner restaurant, serving folks on the family china.

In the 40's Walter put up the first structures of an historical Old West town, to provide a diversion for dinner guests.

Knott's Berry Farm is owned and operated by the Knott family to this day.

Gradually, Mrs. Knott's dining rooms and Mr. Knott's "diversions" outgrew the original 10-acre farm.

The Knott children grew, too, and began adding their various contributions to the enterprise.

And to this day, we're making family entertainment history.

Knott's territory is this way!
